Eric Church "Chief" #1 (2011).

3rd album by this North Carolina singer-songwriter Eric Church. "Chief", is a pure country-rock classic! I'm not a country listener, love my rock and roll (70's rock and some recent rockers Gaslight Anthem, but Eric too me is one of the best talents out there. "Sinners Like Me" (2006) is great, "Carolina" (2009), is just a tad below, but still a great listen, but let's get back to "Chief", you get the rocking' "Creepin'", should be a big hit in the near future, great dobro guitar on this track. His first #1 and #40 hot 100 hit "Drink In My Hand", a solid party anthem. "Keep On", a fantastic southern rocker, has kind of a Allman Brothers feel to it. The beautiful smooth "Like Jesus Does", "I'm a long gone Waylon song on vinyl". "Hungover And Hard Up", very good melodic piece, great lyrics. The single "Homeboy" #13, about a brother gone bad in the big city, and his other brother wanting him to come back to his small town, tremendous tune! "Country Music Jesus", slow building rocker, nice guitar, banjo piece, a Great album! I enjoyed all songs. Lyrics were also well done and caused to to reflect back on your experiences. I'm looking to dig back into other Eric Church albums. Keep 'em coming!

★★★★★ The album far surpasses its radio singles

I've been a big country music fan for the past 5 years or so. That being said, when I've heard Eric Church songs on the radio, I was never all that impressed, although I thought most of the songs were "good." This past summer I had the opportunity of seeing him live in concert, and he put on a really great, energetic set. Because of how engaged the audience was and how he connected with everyone, I decided to give his music another chance. This time I wanted to go beyond his radio singles and actually listen to the full album.

"Chief" really surprised me. Some of the songs didn't resonate with me at first, such as "Creepin'," but after listening to every song from start to finish a few times, I realized I was humming or singing along to most of the songs. One of my biggest gripes with the country music genre is that there are a fair number of extremely cheesy tracks on almost every album. One of the reasons that I enjoy this Eric Church album so much (the same reason I like Darius Rucker's newest album) is that most of the songs feel genuine, and they aren't very cheesy or cringe-worthy.

I guess when you plow a field differently than any other, you run the risk of some simply not understanding. However, I do. First of all, the pure heart with which Church sings, is nothing short of a musical version of the Grand Canyon. And all of these musical sounds he makes, instead of lyrics. Nobody is doing that! And that's what Eric Church does...What no one else does. He doesn't take what everybody else does and make it better, with "Chief" he does what nobody else does and IS Better!

The Content, these songs are more reserved than the Carolina cd, or rather less Hard-Rockin' Country. There are plenty of partying songs, but they are more reserved or relaxing, kind of like real country. To Me country is supposed to be relaxing. However, I love me some Hank Jr. and I love the carolina album.

This album is simply a different flavor for Eric, and definitely a more mature side. Although he has fewer ballads than ever before. Only one. The focus of this album is more "artistic"

Eric Church ist eine Klasse für sich. Alle Lieder sind spitze und werden jedes Mal Hören noch besser. Mal rockig, mal ruhig, vereint dieses Album alles, was eine richtig gute CD braucht. Man kann sie immer wieder hören und man hat nie genug davon.
